ICOS-23

York University, Toronto, Canada, 17-22 August 2008

Third circular

See <http://icos2008.yorku.ca/>

Helpful hints from the organizers:

- 1) If you are coming to York University from the airport, please consult the information about this on our website. It is best to take a taxi.
- 2) Money exchange. It is easiest to change money while at the airport. If you have a card that will work in a automated money dispensing machine in North America, you will find some of these machines. There are also money exchange booths that exchange most currencies. Banks in the neighbourhood of York University will exchange money, but probably will only do so for currencies such as Euro, British Pound or American Dollar and they will only do so during banking hours.
- 3) If you have reserved a hotel room while at York University, please be aware that the hotels are not within easy walking distance. They are about five minutes by car and about half an hour or more on foot. So, you will probably need to use a taxi each time. Hotel accommodation is fine for people who are driving to the conference or for those who are renting a car.

THE AGENDA FOR THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY WILL BE PUBLISHED AT THE CONGRESS

Elections to the Board of Directors of ICOS

Elections for the following posts will take place at the General Assembly of ICOS, 21 August 2008, York University, Toronto, Canada:

President
 Two Vice-Presidents
 Treasurer
 Secretary
 Assistant Secretary and Web Officer [one post]
 Six non-executive officers (also called at-large members)

The following candidates have been nominated and have formally accepted nomination:

The Secretary wishes to apologize for the problems in maintaining the ICOS web-site. Because of continuing technical difficulties, he can do this only during visits to his old institution. Members will notice nevertheless that some changes and additions have been made, and that it is more or less up to date as of 3 July 2008.

Report on recent onomastic activities in Sweden (Katharina Leibring)

Most onomastic research in Sweden is to be found in Uppsala as both the university chair in Scandinavian onomastics and the Institute for Language and Folklore (SOFI) are situated there, but there has also been activities in Gothenburg, Lund and Umeå during the last 18 months.

The chair in Scandinavian onomastics at the university of Uppsala has recently got a new holder: Staffan Nyström from Stockholm, as Professor Svante Strandberg has retired. For ICOS members Professor Nyström will be familiar as the editor of volume 42 of Onoma on Urban toponymy. At present, about half a dozen doctoral students in Uppsala are doing active work on onomastic subjects. Their research is devoted to: parents' attitudes to today's given names (Emilia Aldrin), women's choice of surnames around 1900 (Sonja Entzenberg), soldiers' names (Roland Andersson), the development of Saami family names (Märil Frändén), the formation of Scandinavian bynames and hypochorisms (Stefan Jacobsson), settlement names in Bohuslän (Catarina Røjder) and microtoponyms in Uppland (Elin Forsberg).

Two doctoral dissertations in onomastics, both at the Department of Scandinavian languages at the University of Uppsala were published in 2007: by Kristina Neumüller on hydronymic name-complexesⁱ and by Carina Johansson on urban names and name-users' perceptions of these.ⁱⁱ

Among recent publications the four annual periodicals: Namn och Bygd, Studia Anthroponymica Scandinavia, Ortnamnssällskapets i Uppsala årsskrift and Sydsvenska ortnamnssällskapets årsskrift, all have published new volumes containing articles and reviews that together cover a broad onomastic field. All of these periodicals have summaries in English and occasional articles are published in English or German.

Some new books (apart from the above-mentioned dissertations) are Smeknamn och öknamn på personer nämnda i dagspressen by Reinert Kvillerud,ⁱⁱⁱ Nordiskt runnamnslexikon by Lena Peterson,^{iv} Bebyggelsenamnen i Mörbylånga kommun by Per Vikstrand,^v and volume 3 of Proceedings of the ICOS Conference in Uppsala 2002.^{vi} Volume 4 is scheduled to appear this autumn.

The largest conference for Swedish and Scandinavian onomasticians in 2007 was the 14th Scandinavian Onomastic Congress in Borgarnes, Iceland in August, which gathered over 50 participants. The annual meeting of Scandinavian language planners, held in Uppsala in September, was devoted to names and name planning. A smaller symposium concerning the place-name element torp was held in Malmö/Lund, and two symposia in Uppsala and Umeå in late 2006 were devoted to names and multiculturalism. The proceedings from the Uppsala symposium were published last year under the title Namn och mångkultur –flerspråkiga miljöer och kulturella influenser.^{vii}

Apart from the four long-running large place-name projects Sveriges Ortnamn, Ortnamnen i Göteborgs och Bohus län, Skånes ortnamn and Ortnamnen i Övre Norrland, and the Lexikon över Sveriges Medeltida Personnamn [Dictionary of Medieval Personal Names in Sweden] there are several newly started onomastic projects, all based in Uppsala.

a) From Nora-Anna to Foppa is a project on nicknames in Swedish sports during the 20th century. One of its aims is to let the nicknames of sports idols reflect the development of Swedish sports as well as society in general (Leif Nilsson).

b) A project on the historical naming of persons is Denotations of individuals or "name phrases" in Sweden ca 1300–1750, i.e. name phrases consisting of both names and non-proprial designations, e.g. wife Anna, Anna Jonsdotter ('Jon's daughter'), Olaf's wife or Anna in the gate (Lennart Ryman).

c) Settlement names and the new settlement archaeology aims at understanding the genesis and continual life of settlement names in the Iron Age landscape of central Sweden (Per Vikstrand)

More and more of the material in the large place-name archives is being made available on the Internet. For example, much of the main Uppsala collection on Swedish place-names can be accessed via www.sofi.se. It consists of about 4 millions of name excerpts from oral or written sources that have been collected during the last 100 years.

- 16.30 Botolv Helleland (Oslo): Names and identities – what next?
- 16.45 Closing
- 19.00: Reception by the Mayor of Oslo at the Town Hall of Oslo (Oslo rådhus).

On the eve of the conference, Thursday November 20 at 7 p.m. participants and accompanying persons are invited to a social gathering with "rjomegraut" on the menu.

Most of the papers and the following discussions, questions and comments will be in English. Some of the participants who are not on the speakers' list will prepare comments to the various papers to start the discussion.

There are no conference fees. Registration by 15 November 2008: Name Research, Department of Linguistics and Scandinavian Studies, University of Oslo, P.O. 1011 Blindern, NO-0315 Oslo. Fax (++47) 22 85 43 81. Phone (+47) 22 85 43 78. e-mail: botolv.helleland@iln.uio.no

Speakers and their professional background (in chronological order):

Silvio Brendler (silviobrendler@hotmail.com) has a PhD in onomastics and is author/editor of a number of books on name research including the onomastic journal Zunamen/Surnames. Thomas Hylland Eriksen (t.h.eriksen@culcom.uio.no) is professor at the Department of Social Anthropology, University of Oslo and a key person in CULCOM (Cultural complexity in the new Norway). Peter Jordan (peter.jordan@osi.ac.at), PhD in geography, is Associate Professor at the Austrian Academy of Sciences, Institute of Urban and Regional Research, Vienna. Richard Coates, PhD, (richard.coates@uwe.ac.uk) is professor at the University of the West of England, Bristol and also secretary of ICOS (International Council of Onomastic Sciences). Aud-Kirsti Pedersen (aud.kirsti.pedersen@hum.uit.no) is associate professor at the Faculty of Humanity, University of Tromsø. Ingvil Nordland (ingvilm@gmail.com) has recently finished her master's degree on disputes relating to place-name standardization at the Department of Linguistics and Scandinavian Studies, University of Oslo. Inge Særheim, PhD, (inge.saerheim@uis.no) is professor at the Faculty of Humanities, University of Stavanger and has published a number of books and articles on names. Solveig Wikstrøm (solviks@hotmail.com) is currently writing a master thesis on surnames and identities at The Department of Linguistics and Scandinavian Studies, University of Oslo. Professor Dr. Maria Giovanna Arcamone (arcamone@ling.unipi.it) is teaching literary onomastics at the Faculty of Literature and Philosophy at the University of Pisa. Benedicta Windt (benew@online.no), Department of Linguistics and Scandinavian Studies, University of Oslo, is about to finish her doctoral dissertation on personal names and their identity aspect in selected parts of Sigrid Undset's literary works. Astrid Sann Evensen (astrid.sann.evensen@hum.uit.no) has a master's degree on the role of place-names and identity in Tor Jonsson's poetry and is currently working as secretary for the place-names consultancy in Northern Norway.

The research group Names and identities/Onomastics at The Department of Linguistics and Scandinavian Studies, University of Oslo, is the organizer of the conference, with senior lecturer Botolv Helleland (botolv.helleland@iln.uio.no) responsible for the organization of the conference.

Panel on Socio-onomastics as pragmatics at the 11th International Pragmatics Conference in Melbourne, Australia,
July 12–17, 2009

The panel is organized by Terhi Ainiola & Jan-Ola Östman

The panel is the first event in a more general attempt to bring together research findings and researchers from pragmatics and socio-onomastics, and in particular at this conference to focus on names and naming in their social and cognitive context.

The panel focuses on scrutinizing research findings within socio-onomastics in relation to the various fields within pragmatics that directly or indirectly deal with names and naming; cf. philosophical approaches (definite descriptions, deixis), cross-cultural pragmatics (names in contact, exonyms), cognitive issues (categorization in terms of naming), socio-pragmatics and politeness (terms of address), interaction (the use of and attitudes towards names, sociolinguistically in general, and in on-line interaction), and language and ideology (identity and naming).

Socio-onomastics as a field of research is a sub-discipline within onomastics (the study of names) that has only quite recently begun to be approached in a systematic manner. Traditional onomastics has largely focussed on the etymology and typology of names (particularly place names and personal names but also “other names” (commercial names, ship names, pet names, etc.)). Although socio-onomastics acknowledges the historical dimension of names and naming, it stresses the use of names in every-day interaction: how various names are used, why some names are avoided, why certain names are coupled with particular pejorative attitudes, and how name users perceive the names they use. As a whole, socio-onomastics takes into account the social, cultural, and situational domains in which names are used. Notably, social variation and situational variation are studied, and the reasons why people know certain names (but not others) are examined. The study of attitudes and stance towards names and name usage are also part of socio-onomastic research. (For more information on socio-onomastics, see the entry on “Socio-onomastics” by Terhi Ainiala in the 2008 Installment of the Handbook of Pragmatics (Benjamins, Amsterdam).

The panel is open for participation and presentations from scholars from all over the world and from different theoretical perspectives. We see the panel as a way to stake out the research situation in this field for the future, and we aim to bring socio-onomastics in line with general pragmatics research.

This is to invite scholars in this growing field of research to participate in the panel. If you are interested in participating, please do not hesitate to contact the organizers at Terhi.Ainiala@Kotus.fi or Jan-Ola.Ostman@Helsinki.fi

URBAN PLACE NAMES International symposium, Helsinki 13–16 August 2009

The Research Institute for the Languages of Finland cordially invites the submission of paper proposals for its cross-disciplinary symposium on urban place names. The symposium will be held on 13–16 August 2009, in Helsinki, Finland.

OBJECTIVES

Recent years have witnessed a considerable rise in the interest in the linguistic aspects of urban processes. In particular, institutional procedures, commercial aspirations and everyday meanings related to toponymic landscapes have been studied in different historical and present-day urban settings. The goal of the path-breaking symposium is to gather scholars to discuss the current theoretical and empirical challenges of urban place name research.

Following issues, inter alia, will be addressed in the symposium: in what ways power structures and social identities are constructed and contested through the naming of streets and everyday places? What is the role of place names in the formation of lived everyday meanings and cognitive perceptions of urban space? What is the contribution of specific disciplines to the study of urban toponymies, and how might interdisciplinary approaches to it be best facilitated?

We invite scholars from different countries and disciplines (e.g., linguistics, onomastics, geography, history, cultural studies, anthropology, sociology, political science, and literary studies) to present theoretical openings and case studies on the above and related subjects.

The symposium will consist of keynote lectures, thematic sessions and excursions.

The symposium language is English.

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS:

Prof. Maoz Azaryahu, Haifa University

Prof. Staffan Nyström, Uppsala University

SYMPOSIUM SITE

The symposium will be organized in Vuosaari, Helsinki. The venue of the symposium is Hotel Vuoranta (http://www.sodexo.fi/en-GB/hotel_vuoranta/). It is located in beautiful coastal surroundings, only a metro trip away from downtown Helsinki.

ACCOMMODATION

Hotel Vuoranta (http://www.sodexo.fi/en-GB/hotel_vuoranta/) is the most convenient place to stay during the symposium. More low-budget accommodation is available in Rastila Camping (for more information, see www.camping.fi > Rastila), located in the vicinity of the symposium venue.

SYMPOSIUM FEE

The symposium fee is 180 euros. It includes meals, a symposium banquet and two excursions in Helsinki and its neighbouring municipalities.

EXCURSIONS

The symposium includes two half-day excursions in the Metropolitan Helsinki. After the symposium, an optional excursion to St Petersburg in Russia will also be organized.

ENROLMENT AND IMPORTANT DEADLINES

If you want to present a paper at the symposium, please send your abstract (max. 300 words) to terhi.ainiala@kotus.fi by 1 December 2008. Abstracts will be reviewed by the symposium's scientific committee. You will be notified by 15 February 2009 whether your paper has been accepted. In March 2009, we will also send you more detailed information on the symposium's program and practical arrangements.

One or two peer-reviewed theme issues / publications will be produced on the basis of the symposium's papers.
